

DRIVING HEALTH STUDY

The first major survey of truck driver health, conducted by Monash University in partnership with TWU, Linfox and the Centre for WHS, reveals shocking problems in Australia's most common job for men. It points to a need for urgent reform to address and prevent physical and mental health issues among drivers.

PHYSICAL HEALTH

TRUCK DRIVERS

54%

are obese compared to 32%

of the general population

30%

had three or more diagnosed medical conditions compared to 8%

of the general population

30%

were in fair to poor general health compared to 16%

of the general population

34%

had back problems compared to 17%

for Australian males

“ The biggest issue with drivers is just food and the availability of fresh, good food on the road. That's probably one of the biggest issues. But the thing is, what people tell us to eat, and what is available on the road, it's very hard to get... my work is all overnight so I sleep during the day and then eat during the night. So it's very, very hard. ”

MENTAL HEALTH

reported having some level of psychological distress

1 in 5

under 35 reported severe psychological distress compared to

1 in 9

of the average population

“ Just last week, I had a driver say that he nearly pulled the wheel on the truck to head straight into a tree, because it was just crap; it was too overwhelming for him. And he's breaking down crying on the phone. ”

DANGEROUS WORKING CONDITIONS

71%

reported near misses on average once a week

37% Only 11%

reported working more than 60 hours a week

worked less than 40 hours a week

“ If I miss a deadline my management get rather upset with me. They like to try and yell, rant and rave down the phone at me. ”

“ There are some cases of three or four-lane highways where there's nowhere to pull over. I can personally tell you I've been driving along there struggling to keep within my lane and then trying, and just struggling to stay awake and there's nowhere to pull over. ”

RELATIONSHIP STRUGGLES

SOCIAL ISOLATION

Social isolation on the road and long working hours often led to relationship breakdowns with family.

“ Myself and my ex-wife separated... because I was away so much. So that's probably one time where I lost everything. ”

“ My son's been looking for my guidance and my love I suppose and it hasn't been there because I've been too busy driving trucks and, you know, fighting my own battles. ”

BARRIERS TO HEALTH

Difficulties in eating healthily and exercising

Challenges of accessing professional help with unpredictable shifts

Sub-standard facilities on the road

Time pressures and long working hours

Financial Pressure

“ There's truck rest areas where there might be 10 and 15 trucks parked of a night time and there's not one single toilet and nowhere to wash your hands, nowhere to wash your face, nowhere to cook a meal, nowhere to sit in the shade, trucks are all out in the sun in a dustbowl. ”

“ 95% of drivers I talk to don't want to work more than 12 hours a day, but the owners need more to pay the [truck] payments... they've got to make that truck work 16 hours a day... six days a week... to make the payments because they work that cheap. ”
